Katzscan celebrates its 20th (Platinum) anniversary

Founded in January 1996, Katzscan celebrates its 20th year this month, which according to anniversary gift guides, is its Platinum anniversary.

This is truly a milestone achievement and one that I am most proud of and even taken aback by as I reflect on many accomplishments.

I have resolved the most pressing problems of my clients in the areas of enterprise software (e.g. Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) systems), eB2B especially EDI (Electronic Data Interchange), data analysis and database development, revitalizing chaotic operations, and supply chain vendor compliance. I have been complimented on my technical and user documentation and my presentation and training skills.

I have achieved recognized and notable certifications in fraud prevention, software, internal controls, and good governance.

I have had the good fortune of helping companies small and large, some national leaders in their respective fields, some outside of my home region of South Florida, and branching out to help a company outside of the United States.

I have expanded my brand through over 45 speaking opportunities locally, nationally, and internationally, as well as being published in over 15 newspapers and national trade journals. My travels have taken me to Mumbai, Hong Kong, Krakow (Poland), and China.

Certainly I am most proud of being the author of two published books. My first book, published in August 2012, titled Detecting and Reducing Supply Chain Fraud, is in over 190 university libraries in over 20 countries worldwide on top of private sales. My second book, Successful Supply Chain Vendor Compliance, will be published this month on my 20th anniversary date. Both books are published by Gower Publishing.

And I have helped a few friends along the way get started in their own businesses.

I remain committed to providing my clients with creative, independent solutions that prioritize their needs first and foremost, utilizing my rich well of experience and my dual-capabilities of technical skill and business insights.

This journey has been – personally and professionally – evolutionary. As I reflect back on what I have completed, and as I look forward to the unknown opportunities ahead, I am quite certain that I will have much more to contribute and plenty left to learn.

With appreciation to everyone who has helped in my success.
